IN A FEW WORDS

Dear Triathletes,

It's been an incredibly wonderful spring and summer promises the same, especially with all the great local races lined-up! By now, you've discovered where you need some extra work, too. Maybe that swim isn't as efficient as you'd hoped. Or you've avoided hill work on the bike. And possibly that long run was a bit too long for this time of year. Regardless, it's an endless journey that's full of surprises and detours; enjoy. See ya out there!

Sincerely,

Mark Wilson

Featured Athlete: Ronnie Severino

By Mark Wilson

Have you ever been accused of being too intense? Over the edge? A tri-maniac? Many a triathlete has heard this from friends and family; and, occasionally, from other triathletes. But what if this is really you? What if you can't help yourself, you just do things all out?! Well, our HVTC Featured Athlete of the Month, Ronnie Severino, fits in this category. He loves to push himself and enjoys a challenge even more. His competitive spirit and drive is reminiscent of the phrase "if it doesn't kill you, it makes you stronger." Here's his story.

Ronnie was born in Brooklyn, NY. He didn't go to high school; instead he got his GED and moved out to LA to become a musician. He wrestled in Jr. High School, but they kicked him off the team because his first match looked more like "an episode from The Sopranos. I really kicked the guy's ass." Ronnie and his wife Donna currently live in Ulster Park. They have two great kids John and Matt. According to Ronnie, John is going to be the next American Tour de France winner! Only time will tell. Ronnie is working here and there at the moment, while seeking more permanent work. When he's not training or racing, music is his next hobby of choice.

Volume IV, Issue No. 5 May 2004

Ronnie's first multi-sport experience was at the 1997 March Madness Biathlon in Central Park and he placed 34th overall. Soon after, he raced the Hudson Valley Triathlon (which was a half-Ironman at the time) and considers it one of his most memorable triathlon moments. He remembers Mark Wilson beating him out of the water (imagine that), catching him on the bike and dropping him (imagine that!), Mark catching-up again and getting dropped a second time (that hurt), then Ronnie running scared for the entire half marathon...but outlasting him. (Ah, friends; can't live with 'em, can't live without 'em!)

Ten years before Ronnie got involved in Triathlon he was sitting on the couch smoking a cigarette with his father (who is non-supportive of Ronnie's triathlon endeavors) watching the Hawaii Ironman World Championship and saying how "those guy's are nuts. I can never do that!" In his late twenties, after years of abusing his body, Ronnie started getting panic attacks and the sensation that he was going to die. He started running to regain his health. Then, he watched the Ironman again when Luk Van Lierde broke the Hawaii course record. It turned him on! Thomas Hellriegel was also an inspiring figure that motivated Ronnie to say "I want to do that!!!!"

To Ronnie, triathlon is like war, but as he puts it "it's a way to fight without hurting someone." He really enjoys the mental aspect of the sport, too. He likes to "size-up" his competition and find a way to beat them. To him "It's like you're a general and an army at the same time." Triathlon gives Ronnie a sense of freedom to just let it rip. As a result, he's always recommending triathlon to others.

Ronnie has some impressive triathlon highlights! He's completed Ironman Florida (10:25), Ironman USA (10:44) and has a 4:26 half-Ironman PR. Not bad for a Snickers lover! His goals include performing a sub-10 hour Ironman and winning the HVTC Summer Tri-Series. (Make that a case of Snickers next time at Sam's Club.)

He wanted to add this, too. "The last two years have been the most trying times of my life. I've had to deal with many personal problems and injury that kept me from the sport. I started smoking, not taking care of myself and have just gotten back on track. The two people who helped me find my way back are Mike [Halstead] and Greg [Sautner]. They have been awesome friends. I want them to know in writing that I am forever grateful." Thanks, Ronnie!
